TRIAD Wins Healthiest Employer Award

West Allis, WI – Triad Construction is pleased to announce its recent award of The Business Journal's "Healthiest Employer" in the Small Category (1 to 100 employees).

Triad Construction's workplace wellness started at a weekly meeting, developed with a simple questionnaire and launched with the help of Principal Wellness as Triad Construction Wellness Initiative in January 2012.

The program includes online resources and programs and is supplemented with active challenges and community events for all employees throughout the year. Point systems with incentives ranging from a water bottle for completing a wellness assessment, to a vacation day for full participation throughout the year are available. The first challenge from February through March had over 50% participation.

A healthy and safe work environment has always been a priority for Triad Construction. Safety is extremely important and Triad focuses on jobsite health and safety at all times. Communication through weekly email blasts has been an important tool to reach field and office staff. While the program is in its inception, the new initiative has been positive within the company.
